Our 9th Stereoscopic weekend was not as successful as the previous year in terms of attendance, perhaps because it was graduation weekend at Akron U. and there were no rooms available at the “convention” hotel. I could not attend myself because it was the same day as my daughter’s graduation from Toledo. Still, attendees saw a variety of interesting 3d programs and I hope everyone enjoyed the activities. One of the surprises was how well the movie “Cave of Forgotten Dreams” projected with our digital projectors. According to Jay Horowitz, it was better than the movie theater. We will consider doing something similar next year. About next year, we are considering moving the meeting one week earlier, to avoid problems with Graduation weekend. I would like to thank everyone who contributed to the success of this event and I hope we can count on your contribution next year too. - George Themelis
